

The progettoDiventerò (Young People Project) is a long-term programme headed by the Bracco Foundation to accompany youth in their journey towards professional development to further consolidate the link between academia and industry.

BRACCO FOUNDATION @ NANOINNOVATION NANOINNOVATION 2017 GOT TALENTS CALL FOR YOUNG RESEARCHER

NanoInnovation 2017 invites young nanotechnology researchers to present their research activity in an ad-hoc session dedicated to them, supported by the Bracco Foundation.

The Scientific Committee of the Conference will select the best proposals and the authors will illustrate their activity to a vast audience composed of industry representatives, scientists, experts, investors, entrepreneurs.

The international event will focus on nanotechnologies and their integration with KETs in the following areas:

- Advanced Manufacturing & Industry 4.0
- Consumer and Personal Care Products
- Electronics, Micro and Nanosystems
- Energy & Environment
- Food and Agriculture
- Health and Life Science/ Biotech
- Nano-Materials Based Innovation
- Nanophase Materials
- Nanometrology and Nanoscale Measurements
- Transport, Space & Aeronautics
- Sustainability, Health and Safety and Social Impacts

If you are a young researcher (<35 years old) with a research activity in the above mentioned areas, NanoInnovation 2017 offers you the opportunity to present your work to a high-profiled audience.

To submit your proposal you can use the form available in the Conference web site (www.nanoinnovation.eu) and send it by the 7th of August 2017 to the address indicated in the application form.

Should your proposal be selected you will be invited to do your presentation (10 - 15 minutes long) in a special session within the Conference. The Conference will pay your travel costs. The participation is free of charge.