

Ana Rincon has been a Scientific Officer of the Food Ingredients and Packaging (FIP) Unit of the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) for more than ten years. She has a strong knowledge on risk assessment, EU food law and EU regulatory framework. In her role in EFSA, she coordinates working groups of the EFSA Panel on Food Additives and Flavourings (FAF) dealing with the re-evaluation of food additives or the evaluation of substances to be authorised as food additives in the EU. Dr Rincon holds a PhD in the area of supramolecular chemistry from the Universidad Autonoma de Madrid and has taken a number of postgraduate courses on toxicology and risk assessment.