

THz technologies for the analysis and diagnostics in cultural heritage

Eugenio DEL RE
Sapienza University of Rome

Imaging using thz wavelengths allows the non-invasive electromagnetic detection of features that lie hidden underneath the surface of samples. We will report on our thz scanning confocal imaging of ancient artifacts. Focus will also be on our recent advances in the development of thz super-resolution.