

Imed AYADI is an Application Engineer at Nanolane, a French company that develops and commercializes optical solutions based on the SEEC technology.

Imed AYADI obtained his Master's degree in Biological Engineering, specializing in design and innovation of bio-products, from University of Compiègne in France and University of Sherbrooke in Canada.

After his initial experience in R&D departments of multinational companies specialized in microbiology and medical imaging, Imed AYADI joined Nanolane as Application Engineer, covering sales in France, Europe, Middle East, Africa and Asia.