

Livia Vittori Antisari has a Degree in Agricultural Sciences. She is Associate Professor at the University of Bologna. Programme director of Master Degree in "Planning and management of agro-territorial, forest and landscape ecosystems" at the University of Bologna. Her teaching activity covers Soil Science. The research activities are focused on carbon sequestration in mountain regions, soil ecophysiological functions, soil pollution and impact engineered nanomaterials in soil-plant ecosystem. Author of more than 70 publications.