

She is Associate Professor in Pharmacology at the Department of Chemical, Biological, Pharmacological and Environmental Sciences, University of Messina. She earned a bachelor in Pharmacy and her first PhD in Science of Drug from University of Naples Federico II and her second Ph.D in Clinic Neurobiological Sciences at University of Messina. She earned a master in Pharmacology from University of Naples. She attended Yale University, School of Medicine, New Haven where she worked before attending the University of Messina. The research carried out by Emanuela Esposito is documented by 226 publications in international journals and 164 communications in national and international congresses.