

Chemical Engineer with strong technical background in nanotechnology, biomaterials, regenerative medicine and more than 10 years experience in biotech and medical device industries in the management of R&D projects and research teams. Before joining Finceramica as product and process development manager, she worked at Anika Therapeutics and she earned a PhD at the University of Padova and Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT, USA) on the development of advanced technologies and biomaterials for regenerative medicine. She was chairperson of the Regenerative Medicine working group within the European Technology Platforms on Nanomedicine and reviewer of Euronanomed granted projects. She has published more than 15 papers in peer review journal.